8. Incidental biographic information not known to us previously is the fact that [redacted] worked for [redacted] for about two months in Athens while [redacted] and [redacted] were investigating the famous Polk murder case in 1948. [redacted] says that [redacted] engaged him after the first Greek interpreter employed by [redacted] had tried to charge an outrageous sum of money for the first month of work. [redacted] recalls that [redacted] had become well acquainted with [redacted] at the time when [redacted] was sent through Istanbul for a mission in 1944.
