

GRE Waiver Request Form

For the purposes of granting a waiver of the GRE requirement as a component of the application for admission to the master's degree or certificate programs in the Graduate School of Political Management, relevant experience is defined as follows:

A minimum of three years of full-time (35 hours or more per week), professional experience that includes some combination of program responsibility, independent decision-making authority, official high-level outside contacts, budgetary responsibility and/or supervisory authority. "Relevant work experience" does NOT include internships, volunteering on a campaign, receptionist duties, or clerical responsibilities.

Waiver Request:

I request a waiver from the requirement that applicants to the Graduate School of Political Management at The George Washington University submit Graduate Record Examination scores as part of the application. I am requesting this waiver based on my professional experience since receipt of my bachelor's degree that meets the requirement described above.

Things to know about applying for the GRE Waiver

- The waiver option is designed to help those applicants who have been out of school for some time and whose professional experience gives The Graduate School of Political Management a measure of their capabilities that adequately substitutes for the GRE.
- The great majority of applicants will continue to take the GRE as part of their application process.
- You should submit your waiver request as early as possible, before preparing the remainder of your application documents. The waiver decision is made independent of and prior to the review of the application for admission. You will know within two weeks of submitting your waiver request documents whether or not to plan to take or report GRE scores.
- Applicants whose request for waiver is denied cannot apply for conditional admission in anticipation of taking the GRE in the future.
- If your GRE waiver request is denied, you may enroll in up to three courses or nine credits as a non-degree student while you prepare for and take the GRE. For more details about this option, see the information for non-degree seekers online at www.gspm.gwu.edu.
