General Guidelines for the Selection of GW Award Recipients

Nominees for the George Washington Award should be individuals who have displayed competence, integrity and goodwill in carrying out their University responsibilities, and who have made exceptional contributions which have advanced the University toward realization of one or more of the following objectives:

- to develop students' abilities to the fullest;
- to provide for superior instruction and facilities;
- to provide for a balanced program of student extracurricular activities;
- to utilize its historical, geographical, and functional relationship to the nation's capital and the Washington, D.C. community.

In evaluating the contributions of the nominees, the following factors will be considered:

- Attention will be given to contributions which are exceptional for the creativity they evidence or for the difficulties they transcend. These contributions will be evaluated for their cumulative effect as well.
- Attention will be given to contributions occasioned by an office, job, or position where exceptional performance is clearly represented, above and beyond that which would typify usual or expected execution of duties.
- Attention will be given both to contributions which have had significance for special populations and to those which have had a broad impact.
- Preference will be given to contributions of lasting benefit.

Students, faculty, administrators, and staff of the University may be nominated and/or recommended for The George Washington Award by any member of the University community. Nomination forms may be obtained in the Associate Vice President and Dean of Students Office in Rice Hall 401, the Student Activities Center in Marvin Center 427, and at the first floor information desks in Rice Hall, the Marvin Center, and the Academic Center.
