

“I am working for a small community-based organization in Rwanda that can barely pay its own costs, so it definitely could not afford to buy an international plane ticket for me! Because of the Richardson Grant, I have been able to work on the local level and learn from the community leaders who are changing Rwanda from the inside. It has been an unforgettable summer, and it would not have been possible without this grant.”

SUPPORT

THE ELLIOTT SCHOOL COMMUNITY extends far beyond the GW campus. It is a vast network of students, faculty, alumni, staff, and friends who support our efforts in many important ways. Gifts from individuals, corporations, and foundations enable us to expand and enrich our programs and opportunities. We are grateful for the generous contributions of our benefactors, who are helping us make a difference in the world.

EVERY GIFT COUNTS

In 2007-08, gifts from our donors were a critical source of support for student aid, faculty research, and new programs.

The Elliott School prepares students to become international decision makers with keen intellects, cross-disciplinary knowledge, and cross-cultural perspectives. We are committed to making a GW education more affordable, and a crucial way to do this is through philanthropic support. Scholarship and fellowship support enables superb students to benefit from one of the best schools of international affairs in the world. Support from our benefactors also enables Elliott School students to study and work abroad, providing them with a truly international educational experience.

The Elliott School is home to some of the most innovative scholars in their fields.

Our world-renowned research centers and institutes bring together experts to promote deeper understanding of complex international problems. Strengthening these research initiatives enriches the intellectual life of the Elliott School community and GW as a whole. Donor support helped launch two new research centers in 2007-08: the Institute for Middle East Studies and the Institute for International Economic Policy. In their first year, the institutes have made important contributions to these two vital areas of study.

International leaders and foreign affairs experts regularly come to GW to discuss and debate matters of international importance. In 2007-08, the school and its institutes sponsored more than 260 events that brought together faculty, students, alumni, diplomats, policymakers, business executives, journalists, and other experts from around the world. Donor gifts supported several events series, including the Future of Democracy Initiative, the Middle East Policy Forum, and the Distinguished Women in International Affairs series. We are proud to have hosted a number of distinguished speakers over the course of the academic year, including Ugandan peace activist Betty Bigombe; CNN founder and philanthropist Ted Turner; and award-winning physicist Stephen Hawking.

We are very grateful to those who dedicate their time, talent, and financial support to the Elliott School. Each and every gift adds to vibrancy of this important school and strengthens our capacity to shape the world in the 21st century.

William R. Johnson

WILLIAM R. JOHNSON FUND

The Sigur Center for Asian Studies launched a fundraising drive in December 2007 for the William R. Johnson Fund. This fund will support student scholarships and program activities in honor of the center's co-founder and former associate director. Johnson's passion for teaching Chinese history, devotion to students, and tireless stewardship of the center prompted the creation of this special fund.

Johnson distinguished himself in many ways as chair of the department of history and director of the East Asian studies program from its inception in 1975 until his retirement in 1995. He is especially remembered for his concern for students—whether it was setting up a special Chinese language course for graduate students or personally arranging student internships in Asia.

The Elliott School is thankful for the alumni and friends who have supported the Sigur Center and the William R. Johnson Fund in 2007–08 and welcomes future support from all who benefited from Johnson's teaching and generosity.

John Logsdon

LOGSDON FELLOWSHIP FUND

In spring 2008, John Logsdon stepped down as director of the Space Policy Institute at GW's Elliott School of International Affairs. Professor Logsdon was instrumental in establishing the institute, where scholars, policy analysts, practitioners, and students from around the world examine options for the future in space together. He has been the driving force behind its tremendous success.

Former students, faculty colleagues, and space policy practitioners have joined together to honor Professor Logsdon and his 40 years of service to GW by establishing the Logsdon Fellowship Fund, which recognizes his dedication to educating future generations of space policy leaders. This fund will provide crucial support for students who study international science and technology policy at the Elliott School. We thank all of the generous supporters of the Space Policy Institute and the Logsdon Fellowship Fund.

INTERNATIONAL COUNCIL

THE ELLIOTT SCHOOL'S INTERNATIONAL COUNCIL was created in 1997 to serve as an advisory body to the dean and as a source of intellectual, organizational, and financial support for the school. Since the Council's inception, its members have made tremendous contributions to the school's institutional development, dedicating their time, expertise, and resources to advance our important mission.
