Gregory Shaw joined The George Washington University (GWU) Institute for Crisis, Disaster and Risk Management in December 2001 following almost two years with Veridian Systems Division, Chantilly, Virginia as Director of the Geospatial Services Group. While at Veridian, he served as an emergency management consultant and analyst for the Disaster Management Interoperability Services (DMI-S) Implementation Project Team.

Currently Gregory Shaw is an Associate Professor of Engineering Management and Systems Engineering and a Co-Director of the Institute for Crisis, Disaster and Risk Management. Since returning to GWU he has conducted research in support of Operation Safe Commerce, the organizational response to the 9-11 attacks, mass casualty preparedness and response, healthcare emergency management competencies and certification, the impact of the 9-11 attacks on corporate America and a risk assessment of the San Francisco ferry system. He is an adjunct faculty member for Florida Atlantic University, and Massachusetts Maritime Academy teaching graduate level courses in Homeland Security, Crisis and Emergency Management and Risk Management.

Previously, Gregory Shaw served as an officer in the United States Coast Guard, retiring as a Captain in October 1996. While on active duty, he commanded four cutters and the Coast Guard's largest shore unit, served as Liaison Officer to the United States Navy Mine Warfare Command, and as a senior analyst for the Congressionally chartered Commission on Roles and Missions of the Armed Forces. Additionally, Gregory Shaw spent over twelve years in assignments related to Coast Guard training, education and development culminating in the assignment as Director of the Coast Guard's Training and Education System.

Gregory Shaw has earned his Doctor of Science in Engineering Management at GWU and Masters Degrees in Physics at Wesleyan University, Education and Human Development at GWU, and Business Administration at Webster University. He is a Certified Business Continuity Professional (CBCP) through Disaster Recovery Institute International.
