Uzbekistan is at the core of Central Asia’s future. However, since the early 2000s, the country has increasingly become a kind of ‘black hole’ in terms of scholarly and policy-oriented analysis. The Uzbekistan Initiative aims to fill this knowledge gap by providing independent, critical and fresh analysis by local, regional and international experts.

For its first Workshop, the Uzbekistan Initiative gives the floor to the new generation of Uzbek scholars, who discuss political and socio-economic issues, and to the vibrant Uzbek diaspora in the US and its actions to preserve Uzbek culture and strengthen interaction with the homeland.
