Date: Friday, February 25, 2005

Time: 4:00 pm – 5:00 pm

Location: Monroe Hall (2115 G Street NW), Room 206

Abstract: The work in our laboratory involves integration of different databases to solve biological problems of interest. Our philosophy is that different databases will give us some but not all the information about the biological problems. By combining different problems intelligently, we are able to obtain a more complete picture of the problems of interest. We will use the following two examples to show our points: a) Protein function prediction combining different data sources, and b) Understanding lethality.
