

Dwight S. Cropp, Associate Professor: BA, MA, Howard University; MPA, American University; EdD, The George Washington University. Professor Cropp's teaching and research interests include intergovernmental relations, urban and regional issues, resource development, and management. He is a former Director of the D.C. Office of Intergovernmental Relations. His numerous articles and publications include "The Urgent Challenge: Educational Excellence for All" (Mayor's Advisory Commission on Post-Secondary Education, 1988).