Speakers

Phillip McLean is a Senior Associate at CSIS and an adjunct professor at GWU. After a long career in the U.S. Foreign Service he was appointed Assistant Secretary for Management at the OAS (Organization of American States) in 1994-1995. He led the OAS team monitoring the 2002 elections in Medellin.

Michael Shifter is Vice President for Policy at the Inter-American Dialogue and also adjunct professor at Georgetown University. He writes widely on Latin America. He is the co-editor of the volume Constructing Democratic Governance in Latin America (Johns Hopkins).

Adam Isacson is Director of Programs at the Center for International Policy. He has a Master of Arts degree from Yale University and writes frequently on Colombia issues. His “ciponline” website is perhaps the most comprehensive sources of information about U.S. involvement in Colombia.

Maria Carmenza McLean is Coordinator for the Regional Policy Dialogue at the Inter-American Development Bank. She is a graduate in economics from Los Andes University and recently received a Master’s degree in Political Management from The George Washington University. She has been a journalist and served Colombia as a diplomat and governor of her home department of Norte de Santander.
